

CORPUS CHRISTI CALLER AND DAILY HERALD

By The CALLER PUBLISHING COMPANY
MEMBER ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHN W. STAYTON, Managing Editor

Subscription Rates—By Mail.
Daily and Sunday, one year $15.00
One month $1.25
Sunday only, one year $15.00
By Carrier.
In Corpus Christi and Kingsville
Daily and Sunday, one year $15.00
Per week $1.25

Subscribers, when ordering a change of address, should give both the old and new addresses. Carters for The Caller pay cash for their papers and are unable to send more than a week's issue to subscribers. Their margin of profit is small, and a few losses will be keenly felt. Subscriptions are due the carriers, and not The Caller Publishing Company. Complaints of service, orders to start or discontinue delivery of the paper, and changes of address, should be addressed or telephoned to the

CIRCULATION DEPARTMENT
Phone 5-8.

Address all business communications and make out all checks, drafts, money orders and stationery to The Caller Publishing Company. All remittances and communications should be addressed to Editor, Corpus Christi Caller.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office in Corpus Christi, Texas.

CIRCULATION BOOKS OPEN TO ADVERTISERS

Friday, March 10, 1916.

LET THE FIGHT BE WAGED WITH VIGOR.

A plan framed in iniquity ought not to prosper.

The defeat of the Ham-Ramsey coalition is just a matter of so much deliberate, necessary work.

Nothing except overconfidence can prevent a majority for the present administration.

Every man opposed to fanaticism and misrule and should vote early and work hard.

A great issue is at stake.

The question is not prohibition. The question is not an improvement of morals.

The question is one of politics. It is a thinking movement from a direction that will bear watching. It was planned cunningly, and it has not lost slyness in its culminating. But for Ham-Ramsey and politics too blind to be ignored, it would have proved dangerous. As it is, only apathy will permit it to mature evil fruit.

Corpus Christi cannot afford to risk the cumulative effect of a victory for those imported speakers and politicians. No one's safety cannot afford to risk their more intimate attentions. The people of this city remember the profound cordiality that led up to the election steal of 1914; and they are prepared to express themselves at the polls; but it is possible that the county does not grasp the full significance of this election, that some people imagine it to be based on the higher question to the exclusion of all other motives!

Against the sincere prohibitionist, we have nothing to say. For the prohibitionist whose emotion is nothing more than a superficial layer of Ham-Ramsey, we feel utter contempt; for emotion is a dangerous element to inject into the life of any community, particularly at a time when its people are divided and its commercial life is retarded by passion.

But, laying aside all arguments, urgent work is necessary today. Many tricks of intimidation will be attempted; much criticism and jeering will be used at men by onlookers. The professionals have a supreme duty before them. Every failure amounts to dollars and cents out of their pockets, to lower engagements and smaller collections!

Let all men work earnestly, and very calmly. Let no bitter deed mar the day. Let no woman who works on the streets be subjected to the least slight reproach, in order that men who differ from the Rev. Ham may not resort to his low tactics.

Victory is a matter of work, work.

the German people and just now they are retreating over the wonderful success of the winter snows.

This winter has returned to its birth at Wilhelmshaven after a cruise that proved to be one long record of victories over an enemy. No less than fifteen merchantmen fell prey to its attacks. It reached home bearing prisoners and food. Its commanders and crews have been decorated by the Emperor, and the German people are rejoicing.

Wonderful though its record is, what it has accomplished in the destruction of property, loss of lives and expenditure of money, is insignificant compared with one of the great land battles of the war, such as that of Verdun, now in progress, yet when the highest officers and most heroic soldiers who gave up their lives at Verdun have been forgotten, stories of the Moselle and its successful raid will still be written and read.

But if the Moselle raid has resulted in destroying a large percentage of enemy ships and taking millions of marks of profit to small, and a few losses will be keenly felt. Subscriptions are due the carriers, and not The Caller Publishing Company. Complaints of service, orders to start or discontinue delivery of the paper, and changes of address, should be addressed or telephoned to the Editor.

CLEANSES YOUR HAIR MAKES IT BEAUTIFUL, THICK, GLOSSY, WAVY

TRY THIS! ALL DANDRUFF DIS-APPEARS AND HAIR STOPS
COMING OUT

Simply try a "Dandruff Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just unscrew a cloth with lavender and dash it over the head. Then rub it carefully through your hair taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair our application of Dandruff dissolved every particle of dandruff, invigorates the scalp, stimulates flowing and falling hair.

Invigorate is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It gives vigor to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. It exhilarates, stimulates and increases the growing properties entire the body. A strong, strong and beautiful hair.

You can easily buy pretty soft lavender soap and lather it. If you will just get a small bottle of Invigorate from any drug store or hair dresser and try it as directed.—Ad vertisement.

Now another. Here's interest in Mr. Heflin in this instance.

An avowed and known opponent of practical and theoretical prohibition, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in

so far as he is able to understand this.

As everyone must know, except impractical and theoretical prohibitionists, the recent decline in cotton was the result of ocean freight rates so high that they were reflected in a decline in the price of cotton, which he may not exactly admit.

If Mr. Heflin is a caring man, he might be able to understand this.

He is not, however, the sole man of cotton critics, during a big run in a situation as desperate for the largest importation of cotton, lumber, timber and coal.

Mr. Heflin is a caring man, in